Call for student exchange scholarship for research students at

The Paris Institute of Political Studies (Sciences-Po) - the academic year 2022-2023

As part of the academic partnership between Tel Aviv University and the Paris Institute of Political Studies, a student exchange program has been established in which students from Tel Aviv University will be given the opportunity to study and research at Sciences-Po with generous funding.

Sciences-Po is one of the most prestigious schools in Europe in the fields of social sciences, communication and journalism, economics, political science, international relations, political and cultural history and law. It hosts some of the best experts from around the world. Sciences-Po has one of the richest libraries in Europe; important archives; holds major events such as open forums with prominent public figures; and a large number of seminars and research workshops. Students from Tel Aviv University staying in Paris in this framework will also enjoy its proximity to the main libraries in Paris and other important archives in France.

Who can apply:

• Students in the research track only (MA thesis track / Ph.D.) from the following faculties: Humanities, Social Sciences, Law and Management.

• The Student must be registered as a research student at Tel Aviv University at the time of applying for the exchange program

Scholarship information:

Accepted students can travel either in the first semester, second semester, or the entire academic year. Students traveling for one semester will receive a scholarship of 5,000 euros. Students traveling for a whole year will receive a scholarship of 10,000 euros. All students who are admitted to the program will be exempt from paying tuition in Paris but will continue to pay the tuition at Tel Aviv University for the duration of their stay.
Documents required to apply:

1. Certification of Studies (in English)
2. Transcript (in English)
3. CV (in English)
4. Administrative and Academic faculty confirmation - The student must choose courses from the selection of English courses provided by Sciences-Po. Students can choose not to take courses, and spend their time in Paris promoting their personal research. In this case, the student finds a local supervisor and coordinates a research program for the exchange period. Both the local and the host supervisors must sign the form (attached below).
5. Confirmation of knowledge of the English language at level C1. Details on the certificate can be found here. Most language certificates require additional fees. The certificate is needed only after admission. No prior knowledge of the French language is required. Students will be able to take French courses during their stay in Paris.
6. Research proposal (1-2 pages, in English)
7. Letter of motivation (one page, in English) explaining the estimated contribution of the stay in Paris

The documents should be submitted via the following link. The deadline for applications is: 10.3.2022
