Course Description

The experience of living in Israel in general and Tel Aviv in particular will inform this course. The main project for the semester is creating your own blog based on creative writing exercises done throughout the semester. Writing exercises will be assigned in class and as homework (see instructions for the blog on the last page of the syllabus).

Prior experience with creative writing is not necessary; however, to benefit from the course in a meaningful way, students must possess 1) the willingness to explore written expression in various forms and 2) the desire to study writing as a craft, which includes close attention to one's own experiences, and the experiences of others.

There is also a "workshop" component of this course, in which students will have the opportunity to meet in small groups and share their writing. While workshops are being held, other students have "general" writing exercises to complete and post on blogs.

Finally, we will be reading and responding to poetry and prose by writers from the region, often focusing on themes of place, identity, and language. Such writers may include: Shirley Kaufman, Karen Alkalay-Gut, Mahmoud Darwish, Rachel Tzvia Back, Tuvia Ruebner, Sarah Wetzel, Sayed Kashua, and Etgar Keret.

Course Policies

Attendance

Attendance for this course is mandatory. There are no "excused" absences (except in rare cases determined by the TAU International Office). Three two-hour absences (1.5 weeks of class) are permitted without impact to the grade. After six hours of absence, the participation grade will be brought down ten points for each subsequent absence. It is necessary to be present in class to receive credit for that week. Assignments, including the blog, will be accepted only if a student has been attending on a regular basis. Arriving late can count as half an absence for that week. See the last page of the syllabus for blog requirements following an absence.

There is no need to inform me by email of the reason for an absence. Students who miss class are expected to follow the syllabus, stay informed about updates, and come prepared for the next lesson. Your source for information, announcements, and “catching up” is the Moodle site, where course announcements are posted.

Correspondence

I am available to respond to emails Sunday-Thursday. Please plan your correspondence accordingly.

Note: Announcements, instructions, and due dates will be posted regularly on Moodle. Always refer to the Moodle site with questions about these matters, since emails requesting such information cannot be guaranteed a timely response.

Late Assignments

In general, unless an extension is agreed upon in advance, late assignments will not be accepted, nor are extensions granted after a deadline has passed. If a student does not contact me requesting an extension due to extenuating circumstances, the grade for that assignment will be marked down. Please note that extensions are given on an individual basis only, unless otherwise indicated to the class as a whole.

Classroom Etiquette

Please respect your classmates and conduct yourself in the classroom as you would in a professional setting. It is acceptable to bring a laptop to class; however, you may be asked to put away laptops, and there should be no emailing, texting, Facebooking, Tweeting, Instagramming, Snapchating, etc. during class (unless required by that day’s assignment). Any of these activities will be considered disrespectful to the class. If they are pursued, the student will be asked to leave and will receive an absence for the day. In addition, the student’s participation grade will be negatively affected.

Grading

The course grade will be comprised of the following assignments:

1. Mid-semester blog evaluation 35%
2. Final blog evaluation 45%
3. Workshop attendance 10%
4. Attendance, preparedness, in-class participation 10%

 Instructions for all assignments will be discussed in class, as well as posted on Moodle.*

Blog Requirements

- Due by week three of the semester -

1. Open a blog on a free platform of your choice. (I use wordpress.com, but you can work with Squarespace, Blogger, Tumblr, or another site). If you already have a blog, great, no need to abandon it, but you must open a new one specifically for this course.
2. Please be sure that I have access to the blog. You are welcome to share this blog beyond myself and your peers with family, friends, and acquaintances, or not. It is up to you whether to make it public.
3. Give the blog any title you wish, but there must be a subtitle: “Writing the Experience of Tel Aviv, semester/year.” This can also be the main title of the blog.
4. Writing exercises will be given in class and assigned as homework. Writing exercises for the week will be posted on Moodle. If you are absent, in-class exercises must be completed no later than three days after the class. Exercises for homework must be completed no more than one week after being posted (unless instructions state otherwise). In other words, you cannot wait until the end of the semester to write all the entries; they must be completed in a timely fashion.
5. The first entries (writing exercises) must appear no later than week three, and writing exercises from weeks one and two of the semester will be post-dated.
6. The titles for individual blog entries can be creative, but should contain the week and title of the exercise. Titles will usually be provided (e.g. “Week Four Poetry Exercise”).
7. You can add any photos or other images to the blog that you wish.
8. You can go back and revise your entries throughout the semester, but again, they must be completed on time. A well-done blog will demonstrate detail, description, reflection, and thoughtfulness. Later in the semester, we will be discussing how to present these posts most effectively to a reader.

Submission: The link for your blog should be uploaded in a Word file to the appropriate submission folder on Moodle by week three.

Enjoy!

TAU International Course Guidelines

Rules and Respectful Behavior

- No cell phones or laptops permitted in class unless approved by instructor for use
- Tardiness to class is not permitted
- As our courses bring together students from many different styles of learning and from a wide variety of home institutions, we ask that students remain respectful to and patient with fellow classmates at all time as some students may be more familiar with certain course material or procedures than others.

Learning Accommodations

In accordance to University guidelines, students with learning disabilities or accommodation requests must submit official documentation from their home country / university (translated into English by notary if not already in English) to TAU International (tauiacademic@tauex.tau.ac.il) in advance of arrival describing in detail any specific needs they have. Students must also bring a copy of this documentation with them on-site and give it to their faculty on the first day of class while introducing themselves so that the faculty know who they are and what sorts of needs they may have. TAU International and its faculty cannot guarantee that all accommodations received at the home school can be similarly met at TAU but certainly does the best it can to make any suitable accommodations possible that are needed.

In-class Exams

TAU does not permit, under any circumstances, taking any in-class (including mid or final) exams early or later than the scheduled exam day. When selecting courses, it is thus very important to note below if there is an in-class midterm or final exam as this date/exam cannot be changed. Early departures from the program are not approved, nor are early or exception in-class exams.

TAU International Absence Policy

Attendance is mandatory in all of the courses. Missing classes will be reflected in the final grade of the course. Up to three justified absences from classes will be accepted (for example: emergency matter or illness, both of which will require an official doctor's note sent to the faculty on the day of the absence). Such cases of absence should be reported to your lecturer immediately and again, a doctor's note is required. Students are required to arrive on time for classes. Teachers are entitled to treat any single case of lateness and/or repeated lateness as an unjustified absence. Please note that according to TAU Academic Policy, if a student's behavior or attendance during the semester is disagreeable his/her course participation may be cancelled at the discretion of TAU.

Students are responsible for reading and adhering to the policies and procedures in the TAU International Academic Handbook posted here at all times.
